Description
When you create file via Filer plugin and after this rename this file you in most cases wait that previous file was been "renamed", but it continue exists on filesystem. It will be cool if he will ask: need to delete file with previous name or not.

User interaction isn't fine fit in general, maybe this can be parameter in per-file settings and be set by default to delete previous file on rename of entry. If it set to false - then after rename previous file will not be removed. Also I think that <https://redmine.pfsense.org/issues/10426> need to be resolved first to check that file names in filer is unique and on rename also need to check that new file name is also not have any conflicts.

Also same applies on deletion of entry - when you delete files managed by filer - files doesn't removes. This can be handled by same per-file settings
