Description
Hi,
it is often desirable (esp. when you have more than one identity added in your Google Auth mobile app) to distinguish between different identities. Having all of them to be described as "FreeRADIUS" is not the most convenient way.
I have made the following modification to freeradius.xml :
<pre>-                                     var provider = encodeURIComponent("FreeRADIUS"); +                                     var provider = encodeURIComponent($('#description ') .val()); +                                     if (provider.length == 0) { +                                       provider = encodeURIComponent("FreeRADIUS"); +                                     }</pre>
What do you think about it?
